If there is a Class like this:

```
public class MyDB { private static final String MY_KEY = "MyKey"; private static final String MY_VALUE = "MyValue"; }

 How can i make a query for: `SELECT MY_KEY, MY_VALUE FROM MyDB` In the app.yaml? I was thinking to make a Class like that in the main package and then do something like that:

@property def db_query(self): def _my_db_query(self): query = MyDB().query(MyDB.MY_KEY == 'MY_VALUE') return query return _my_db_query
```

 And then set the query in the classes where needed. Is there a better way to do this? A:

```
@property def db_query(self): query = MyDB().query(MyDB.MY_KEY == 'MY_VALUE') return query

 This would require the object to be static, or to use `@datastore.Put` to make it persistent. This won't work for your example, but it would work for something like an Order that didn't get changed very often. If the values are likely to change often, you should look at using the `key.get()`. You can create a getter for this (it can be in a separate file, but that's a personal choice
