LaserJet M1522 MFP Series Full Solution AM-Â .Q: How to check a full text search predicate against another column value? I have a table with ID and type columns where type can have either "A" or "B". I have a full-text search query `SELECT [ID] FROM [table] WHERE CONTAINS([ID], @SearchText)` SearchText can be a plain text query, a full text query or both. What is the best way to return the ID's that have A in the type column, if the plain text query contains nothing at all, but the full-text one does? I'm using SQL Server 2008 R2. A: The query below should return all ids that have a type of A, regardless of the search term `SELECT [ID] FROM [table] WHERE [ID] IN (SELECT [ID] FROM [table] WHERE CONTAINS([ID], @SearchText) AND [type] = 'A')` But this will only return the ids that have the words type and A in the string passed as @SearchText, not the plain text searched. If you want to search for plain text and full-text and get all ids you can do this `SELECT [ID] FROM [table] WHERE [ID] IN (SELECT [ID] FROM [table] WHERE CONTAINS([ID], @SearchText) AND [type] = 'A' OR CONTAINS([ID], @SearchText) AND [type] = 'A')` Note that if you have a lot of ids you might want to add some indexes to make the queries faster. `CREATE INDEX IX_TABLE_FULL_TEXT_SEARCH_IDX ON TABLE (CONTAINS([ID], @SearchText))` Proph
